ANOTHER NEW STEAMER

dded to the St. Louis and Vicksburg

Enthusiastic Reception Given Her by River People and Citizens of Memphis-Description of the Boat.

The firing of cannon and shouting of steam whistles about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon summoned all hands to the bluffs overlooking the river. A few knew the event due at at hour, but among the masses considerable unting to alarm, was awakened, the first impulse being that some one of the ners had taken fire. The confusion that followed the general stampede toward the river was indescribable. The commercial kings of Front and Main streets, together with their book-keepers, salesmen and even their customers, including hundreds of la-dies who for the moment forgot their shop-ping, joined in the stampede, and ere the echoes had reverberated from the opposite shore every available space on the bluff was occupied, and a dense throng of living, surg-ing humanity lined its edges from the mouth of Wolf river as far down as the eye could reach. The first glimpse of the majestic river was not satisfactory, as no burning steamer was in sight, but two or three harbor-tugs ranting around and making the air hideous with deafening blasts from their whistles intensified curiosity, and the multitude stood almost breathless until gradually, one by one, the cause of the consternation became known. Soon all eyes were directed up the river t ward Hopefield point, where a beautifusteamer had just hove in sight, and as sh ped onward toward the city presented a pic ure of thrilling grandeur that would defy he skill of the most expert word-painter to portray. It was THE NEW CITY OF VICKSBURG,

HER RECEPTION. Her arrival here was not unexpected in iver circles, consequently preparation had been made to give her a rousing welcome The steamtug Frank Jones took on board th "Little Democrat" and moved up to the mouth of Wolf, and all harbor boats and steamers in port had steam up and whistles in tune, and the first sight of the new steamer was signaled by a belch from the cannon, which set all the whistles in port to tooting, and during ten minutes or a quarter of an hour such an uproar was never before heard n these bluffs. The tugs Frank Jones and riole went up to a point where the Vicksurg was met, and arranging themselves of ach side escorted her to the Anchor ne wharfboat, the cannon and whistles con-nuing their infernal noise until she was made fast to her moorings. Being in the midst of the sean when danger is greatest, and when the ealth authorities are supposed to be most vatchful, the announcement has caused considerable unfavorable comment. The Vicks-burg station was very properly regarded as he most important on the river, and upon he rigid enforcement of the quarantine regulations at that point everybody had began to believe rested the security of all points above from the possibility of importation of yellow-fever or other contagious disease. HOTEL ARRIVALS.

The game between the Lone Stars, of New Orleans, and the Reds, of Memphis, which took place under all the favorable circumstances that could be wished at Olympic Park Sunday, was the attraction that drew a large crowd of people, including many of our best citizens. The good order promised by Manager Al Beer was strictly enforced, nothing transpiring in any way interfering with the pleasure and comfort of the occa-sion. The game was called at 3:30, and lasted two hours and fifteen minutes. The contest, though spirited, was marked by that harmony and fairness that won the admirathe difficult and seldom coveted position of umpire. It is enough to say that all spent a pleasant afternoon, the defeated visitors seemingly enjoying their own misfortune, so happily did everything pass off. We append

The Bare Figures are Enough. The Statistical Bureau at Washingt ntinues to do stalwart work in behalf of the Mississippi river boom. It is true that the bureau is doing nothing but report the bare figures of the port statistics country, but nothing could more strikingly strate the steady and enormous growth of the down-river movement than the comparative exhibit of the exports of all the eading seaports. It is sufficiently startling o see that New Orleans exported more readstuffs in May and June of this year nificance of these figures is greatly increased when it is understood that New Orleans and Boston were the only scaports in the country in which the exports were greater for the last iscal year than the year previous.
